Straubing's rich historical legacy is reflected in magnificent churches, imposing buildings, monuments of historical interest and its fascinating town square. Follow the "Golden Path" to see the most significant sights in the historic centre (1 - 13 + 17, see town map pages 4 - 5).

Discover the "Gäuboden Town" with its cultural abundance and beauty.

1. Town Hall (Rathaus)

In 1382, the municipality purchased the Gothic trading house, which was then converted into the town hall (with a historical council chamber behind the Gothic window facade). The three-storey building underwent drastic alterations in the 19th century, when the Gothic gable was demolished (1826) and the neo-Gothic facade erected (1893). In November 2016 our Town Hall was severely damaged by fire and the historical Chamber got destroyed.

2. Town Tower (Stadtturm)

Foundations for the 68-metre-high, eight-storey fire and watch tower were laid in 1316, and by the 16th century it housed the town watch and boasted five spires. It is the town's landmark. From the top of the tower, there is a magnificent view of the medieval town, the river Danube, the Bavarian Forest and the fertile "Gäuboden" plain.

For information concerning guided tours of the tower, please contact the Tourist Information (tel. +49 9421 94460199).

3. Marketplace (Stadtplatz)

The late Gothic tower divides the wide marketplace into Ludwigsplatz and Theresienplatz, where two baroque wells, dedicated to the town's two patron saints, St. James and St. Tiburtius, can be observed. The varied appearance – from baroque and classicism to historicism and art nouveau – of the basically late medieval houses mirrors the will of the nobility and of the self-confident middle-class to display their status. The rococo facades (designed by the local artist Mathias Obermayr), but also the steep, soaring gables, are typical of Straubing. There is a daily vegetable market on Ludwigsplatz, held by local gardeners. In addition, there is also a farm produce market, held on Ludwigsplatz every Friday and Saturday.

Holy Trinity Column

(Dreifaltigkeitssäule)

The column was erected in 1709 as the result of a pledge made by the citizens during the Spanish War of Succession and dedicated to the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. The Annunciation Group is the work of the Salzburg master craftsman Bernhard Mandl, and the statue of St. Michael is the work of sculptor Franz Mozart.

Church of St. James and 5.

St. Tiburtius (St. Jakob & St. Tiburtius)

The building of this hall church with its three naves surrounded by a ring of chapels and its open chancel was begun towards the end of the 14th century. It is a masterpiece of late Gothic religious architecture. Hans von Burghausen is regarded as the architect of this brick church. The interior decoration of this papal basilica minor ranges from Gothic to modern. Outstanding works include the high altar in late Gothic and neo-Gothic style, the rococo pulpit, medieval and early modern tomb monuments as well as the vast series of stained glass windows, one of which, the "Moses window", was made after a draft by Albrecht Dürer.

Gäuboden Museum

The world famous Roman Treasure of Straubing, as well as unique jewellery and weapon exhibits from early Bavarian times, can be admired in the Gäuboden Museum. Apart from the numerous archaeological finds, there are exhibitions of secular art, popular piety, and local town history, e.g. Under Electors and Kings (Unter Kurfürst und König).

Open Tues. to Sun. from 10 am to 4 pm,
Fraunhoferstraße 23, tel. +49 9421 94463222.

7. Carmelite Church of the Holy Spirit (Karmelitenkirche Hl. Geist)

In 1368, the mendicant order of Carmelite monks settled in Straubing. The Carmelite Church of the Holy Spirit was completed, after a series of building phases, by 1430. It comprises a hall church with three naves and a monastic chancel. These light-flooded naves are typical of the late Gothic period. The architectural work is attributed to both Hans Krumenauer and Hans von Burghausen. Baroque alterations to this church, with its magnificent tombs from the late Gothic and renaissance periods, were carried out by Wolfgang Dientzenhofer in 1700.

Open during daytime.

8. Church of St. Ursula (Ursulinenkirche) The Immaculate Conception

In 1691, the Ursuline Order founded an educational institution for girls in Straubing. The famous Asam brothers, Cosmas Damian and Egid Quirin, designed and built the convent church - their last joint masterpiece - between 1736 and 1741. The unique harmony of architecture, sculpture and painting is exemplary of the transition from the baroque to the rococo period.

Open during daytime, as far as the gate.

9. Ducal Residence Castle (Ehemaliges Herzogsschloss)

Building was begun by Duke Albrecht I of Straubing-Holland in 1356. The residence comprised the ducal tower, a royal wing, a banqueting hall, heated apartments (overlooking the Danube), and a chapel. For centuries, it accommodated important offices under dukes and electoral princes and also served as a defence bulwark. Today, it houses the tax office and the town's library and archives.

10. St. Vitus's Church (Kirche St. Veit)

The citizens of Straubing pledged to build the church after a fire in the town, which broke out on the eve of St. Vitus's Day in 1393. At the beginning of 18th century, the Gothic brick church underwent alterations in the baroque style.

The ceiling frescos by Felix Hölzl (1762) depict the legend of St. Vitus, and the side altars are decorated with paintings by Cosmas Damian Asam (c. 1718).

Open during daytime, as far as the gate. Currently closed for restauration.

Jesuit Church

(Jesuitenkirche) Assumption of Mary

11.

The Gothic church near the Upper Gate was given to the Jesuit Order in 1631. Alterations in 1683 produced a bright, spacious, hall-like baroque room with white stucco decoration. At specified times, both the manger belonging to the Marian Congregation (Marianische Männerkongregation) and the original main portal with its Madonna dating back to the first half of the 14th century can be admired.

Open during daytime, as far as the gate.

Town Fortifications

(Stadtbesfestigung)

12.

At the end of 15th century, the town fortifications were extended to afford Unterm Rain, the craftsmen's district, the safety of the brick town walls. Two of the medieval towers remain today: the round Gunpowder Tower (Pulverturm), which today serves as a memorial to the victims of both World Wars and of Nazi tyranny, and the Weytterturm, which today is used for exhibitions of work by local artists.

Northgate, Hospital and Church of the Holy Trinity

(Spitaltor, Bürgerspital mit Dreifaltigkeitskirche)

13.

The Northgate, originally Gothic and forming part of the town's fortifications, underwent alterations in the early baroque style in 1628.

The hospital was founded by the townspeople in the 13th century to provide housing for impoverished, old and sick town residents. After the great fire of 1780, the church was rebuilt in the early classical style. It contains altarpieces sculpted by the famous local artist Mathias Obermayr.

Open during daytime, as far as the gate.

St. Peter's Church (Kirche St. Peter)

14.

The Augsburg Cathedral Chapter erected the basilica in the centre of the original settlement of Straubing. It is situated on the remains of a Roman fortress and of Carolingian and Ottonian church buildings. St. Peter's has two very remarkable Romanesque tympanums. A Romanesque crucifix (c. 1200) and a moving sculpture of the Pietà (c. 1340) are to be found inside the church. The fortified graveyard is one of the most significant and beautiful of its kind to be found in German-speaking countries. The Gothic Chapel of Our Lady, the Agnes Bernauer Chapel with the Bernauner epitaph of red marble and the Dance of Death Chapel (Totentanzkapelle) with its wonderful frescos created by the Straubing artist Felix Hölzl, all situated on the church grounds, are most impressive. The church and the chapels are open during daytime as far as the gates.

15 Frauenbrünnl Pilgrimage Church

(Wallfahrtskirche Frauenbrünnl)

Frauenbrünnl Pilgrimage Church, built to replace an older chapel, was erected between 1705 and 1707. The baroque, cloverleaf-shaped central construction has an octagonal cupola. The ceiling fresco of the "Saints in Heaven" (Heiligenhimmel) is the work of Georg Asam in collaboration with Cosmas Damian Asam, and the baldachin altar is the work of Franz Mozart. A curative spring issues from below St. Mary's Grotto (Mariengrotte) on the north side of the church.

Visits by appointment, tel. +49 9421 12715, St. James's Vicarage (St. Jakob).

16. Pilgrimage Church of the Assumption

(Wallfahrtskirche Mariä Himmelfahrt) in Sossau

In 1146, Count Albert of Bogen gave his estate in Sossau to the Premonstratensian monastery in Windberg as a gift. The monastery had the Romanesque church erected. In about 1350, the church was extended and decorated in late-baroque and rococo style: The high altar is the work of Mathias Obermayr. One of the oldest pilgrimages in Germany developed around the statue of the Virgin Mary of Sossau. According to legend, the church was brought to Sossau by angels.

Open during daytime, as far as the gate.

17. Synagogue

In 1442, Duke Albrecht III drove the Jews out of Straubing. Jewish families did not settle in the town again until the 19th century. The synagogue, the only one in Lower Bavaria, was built in Neo-Romanesque style in 1907.

Visits by appointment, tel. +49 9421 1387, Jewish Community Office.

Famous citizens of Straubing

Duke Albrecht I (1336 - 1404)

Albrecht, a "great prince indeed", is the most important representative of the line of the Wittelsbach dynasty of Bavaria-Straubing-Holland, which existed from 1353 to 1425. Albrecht, who, from 1358, resided mostly in Holland, had the Ducal Castle built and founded the Carmelite monastery. The Carmelite Church contains the magnificent tomb of his son, Albrecht II, which is behind the high altar.

Agnes Bernauer (c. 1410 - 1435)

Agnes Bernauer, the commoner wife, or so it is presumed, of the Duke's son, Albrecht of Bavaria-Munich, was drowned in the River Danube on 12th October 1435. She is commemorated by the Bernauer Chapel, established by Duke Ernest I (in St. Peter's Cemetery), where her epitaph can be found; by the Agnes Bernauer Festival, which is held every four years in the courtyard of the Ducal Castle; and by a monument, designed by Christoph Pommer, in the Agnes Bernauer Garden at the former salt warehouse (Salzstadel).

Ulrich Schmidl (c. 1510 - 1580/1581)

In 1533/1534, Ulrich Schmidl took part in a Spanish expedition to the New World. After 20 years as a conquistador in Argentina and Paraguay, where he was involved in the foundation of Buenos Aires and Asunción, he returned and published his experiences and observations. He thus became the first historian of Argentina. He is remembered by a commemorative plaque on the house on Ludwigsplatz 15, but he was born in the patrician house on Ludwigsplatz 5.

Mathias von Flurl (1756 - 1823)

The son of a Straubing weaver, he published, in 1792, his major academic work, a description of the mountains of Bavaria and the Upper Palatinate, thereby laying the foundations for mineralogy and geology in Bavaria. In 1840, the town council had a commemorative plaque put up on his birth house on Rosengasse 24. In the park on Kinseherberg, a basalt column was erected in 2006 on the occasion of Flurl's 250th birthday.

Joseph von Fraunhofer (1787 - 1826)

Born the son of a glazier in Straubing, Fraunhofer was to become an ingenious optician and physicist. He was the first in Bavaria to combine basic academic research with practical technical application. Already in 1827, the Straubing town council renamed the cattle market as "Fraunhofer-Straße" and had a bust of Fraunhofer in early classicist style put up on his birth house (Fraunhoferstraße 3). In 1910, a Fraunhofer monument designed by Hermann Hahn, a professor from Munich, was unveiled at the south side of the Ducal Castle.
